COVID 19: REOPENING OF WASHINGTON STATE AND RESIDENT VISITS TO THE COMMUNITY

Dear Adult Family Home Provider:

As Washington State begins moving through the phased reopening under the “Safe Start Washington” plan, some counties have been approved to move into phase 2 and others will soon follow. A part of the phase 2 plan includes the reopening of professional services such as dental and medical services, as well as hair and nail salons. Restaurants will also be allowed to reopen with partial capacity. As we look to these businesses and services reopening, we recognize providers have many questions regarding resident visits to the community to partake in these services, or to work in these locations, and the infection control measures that should be taken when the resident returns home.

As Washington State increases the availability of services and citizens are able to enjoy more time in the community away from home, residents in long term care may also want to enjoy those same opportunities. Under resident rights laws and rules, residents are able to participate in activities away from the home if desired or needed. A recent update to the four phase approach for the re-opening of Washington also allows for those in “high risk populations”, such as long term care residents, to engage in activities that are deemed permissible at each phase of the plan (<https://www.governor.wa.gov/news-media/inslee-issues-safe-start-proclamation-county-approach-re-opening>). However, with residents leaving the home providers will want to be mindful of infection control and implement specific procedures to follow when a resident returns from an outing.

When a resident plans to leave the home for a medical appointment, therapy appointment, an outing, or work in the community, the home should consider implementing the following infection control procedures:

- Assist the resident with acquiring any items needed to follow proper infection prevention practices, such as a mask and hand sanitizer;
- Inform the resident about potential risks when going into the community, including the increased risk of exposure to COVID 19 and the increased risk of introducing COVID 19 to the home upon return;
- If someone is escorting the resident into the community, request they pick the resident up at the front door or curb;
- Inform the person escorting the resident into the community about the potential risks, including the increased risk of exposure to COVID 19 for the resident as well as the increased risk of introducing COVID 19 to the home upon return;
- Request the person joining the resident in the community to wear a mask at all times while with the resident;
- Request the resident follow universal masking while in the community;
- Request the resident adhere to social distancing practices while in the community;
- Request the resident follow good hand hygiene procedures in the community, including frequent use of alcohol based hand sanitizer when soap and water is not available;

- With resident permission, keep a log of resident activities in the community to allow for contact tracing purposes if any community outbreaks occur in businesses or places the resident visited;
- Continue to conduct daily symptom screenings with resident upon their return to the home;
- Request the resident practice social distancing when out of their room in the home upon return from the outing;
- Request the resident follow universal masking when outside of their room upon return from the outing;
- If a home is able, cohorting of residents who come and go from the home would be recommended.

Contact with the local health jurisdiction (LHJ) regarding any specific recommendations, or for information regarding virus activity in the local community can also help a home determine any other procedures that they may need to add to the list above. A list of LHJs can be found here:
